Media Release

Denk Pharma Partners with the International Pharmaceutical Federation (FIP) to Advance Global Access to Quality Medicines

Munich, Germany – 26. March 2026

Denk Pharma GmbH & Co. KG and the International Pharmaceutical Federation (FIP) have announced a strategic partnership to advance access to safe, high-quality medicines and strengthen pharmaceutical practice worldwide.

As part of the partnership, Denk Pharma is proud to support the Pharmacy for All Initiative. It includes the Pharmacy for All DocuSeries, a series of short films and accompanying Executive Summaries on key topics affecting the pharmaceutical community and the patients they serve. The DocuSeries will be hosted and distributed by Associated Press (AP), reaching policymakers, government leaders, NGOs and industry stakeholders worldwide. Denk Pharma is proud to contribute one episode to this series, highlighting the importance of access to safe and high-quality medicines and the vital role of pharmacists. The collaboration also encompasses a Thought Leadership Paper as well as useful pharmaceutical information via AP News and its platforms, united by a shared vision and joint communication approach.

The partnership is grounded in a shared commitment to expanding access to quality medicines, with a particular focus on patients relying on long-term or chronic therapies across diverse regulatory landscapes and climate zones. Both organizations have formalized their cooperation through a Letter of Collaboration, underscoring their mutual dedication to pharmaceutical excellence, quality assurance and responsible pharmaceutical development.

Partnership Highlights

- Denk Pharma is proud to support the Pharmacy for All Initiative in the section of essential medicine.
- FIP has been in official relations with the World Health Organization (WHO) since 1948 and maintains institutional ties with UNESCO, positioning this partnership within a broad global health framework.
- Building on already successful training formats, Denk Pharma will extend these programs directly to pharmacies on the ground across its markets.

- The collaboration provides access to FIP's global network of over 5.5 million pharmaceutical professionals, including 160 national and local pharmacist associations worldwide.

"Pharmacists are among the most trusted healthcare professionals globally. This partnership with FIP allows us to engage directly with the global pharmacy community and to advance our shared purpose," said Alexandra Weston, Chief Marketing Officer at Denk Pharma. "Together, we are committed to expanding access to safe, high-quality medicines for more people around the world."

By combining Denk Pharma's expertise in premium-quality pharmaceutical manufacturing with FIP's global professional ecosystem, both organizations aim to empower pharmacists and contribute to improved access to safe, trusted, and high-quality medicines worldwide.
